THE STATE HIGHWAY

Meeting Called for Monday Evening at the Court House.

A meeting of the people of the county is called for Monday evening, February 15, at the Court House, at 7:30 to consider what action to take in an effort to secure the proposed new state highway along the old pike which passes through Bedford.

It is the duty of all who are interested in the welfare of the county to attend the meeting and do all in their power to secure the proposed road along this route.

Those interested in securing the new highway along what is known as the Juniata Valley route are making every effort to secure the road, and unless the people of our county and the other counties along the old pike take some action we will lose. Let every shoulder be put to the wheel and that at once. Turn out to the meeting Monday night.

THE 55TH PENNSYLVANIA

In Command of Lieut. Col. James Metzger When Mustered Out.

The following brief history of the 55th Pennsylvania, in which were many Bedford Countians and which was in command of our townsman, Col. James Metzger, when mustered out, appeared in a recent issue of the National Tribune:

"The 55th Pa., one of Fox's fighting regiments, was organized at Harrisburg December 4, 1861, and finally mustered out August 30, 1865. It was commanded by Col. Richard White, who was mustered out March 24, 1865, and at the time of final muster-out Lieut. Col. James Metzger was in command. At Drewry's Bluff the regiment, when in an exposed position, was attacked by a division of Beauregard's men, losing over 300 killed, wounded and captured, Colonel White and 164 men being taken prisoners. At Cold Harbor it lost 12 killed, 110 wounded and 29 missing. The 55th lost 750 men killed or wounded during the 11 months preceding Lee's surrender. At the recent poultry show at Frostburg, Md., A. W. ## Puzzles the Doctors

The condition of John F. Snyder, of near Mattie, this county, yet remains critical. Several times those who have watched him have thought he was dying, but each time thus far he has rallied. ## W. C. T. U. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the L. T. L. room Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It is gratifying to learn that the temperance sentiment in favor of Local Option is growing so rapidly throughout the county. Petitions and personal appeals are being sent in large numbers to representatives at Harrisburg, Bedford contributing her quota nobly.

At Wednesday's meeting the local W. C. T. U. decided upon more aggressive work along petitioning lines in keeping with the action of the organization throughout the state. The decisive hour is upon the people of our state with whom the responsibility rests just now, and as the call has gone forth, "Let the voice of the people be heard."

Tuesday evening of this week Mrs. Simon H. Sell delightfully entertained a number of friends at a Five Hundred party. Delicious refreshments were served and the occasion was enjoyed by all present.

LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We are met to dedicate a portion of it as the final resting-place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us,—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion,—that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain, that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that the government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Mrs. Eben P. Welshonce

Emma, wife of Eben P. Welshonce, division operator of the B. and O. Railroad at Cumberland, died at her home there on Saturday, February 6, after a short illness from pneumonia. A sad incident connected with her death was that Saturday marked the anniversary of her birth. Deceased was born in Everett 24 years ago and was a daughter of William Slayman. Her mother and a sister Jennie preceded her to the world beyond a few years ago. She was married to Eben P. Welshonce and had resided in Cumberland for several years. Mrs. Welshonce was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church and has a large circle of friends to whom her sudden death was a great shock. Her husband, father and three small children survive: William, Robert and Catherine.

The body was taken to Everett Monday morning where the funeral was held in the Presbyterian Church, Rev. E. L. Kennedy of Saxton conducting the services. Interment in the Everett Cemetery.

B. F. Heffner

Benjamin F. Heffner of Saxton, a watchman at Clark's Station, was found dead in his watchbox about midnight Friday, February 5. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ann Magee of Colorado and Mrs. George Gates of Saxton. His body was brought to the home of his sister where services were held Monday morning, conducted by Rev. F. W. McGuire.

A Beautiful Memorial

Commemorating the self-sacrifice of Mrs. Grace Mitchell, who gave up her life in the Philippines last September while acting as a missionary nurse, the Bethany Tabernacle Reformed Church of Philadelphia last Sunday dedicated as a memorial to her a handsome suit of pulpit furniture.

Mrs. Mitchell was born in Friend's Cove and was a daughter of Rev. David M. Whitmore, a former pastor of the Reformed Church. Most of her life was spent in Philadelphia until last year when she went to China as a missionary. Responding to a call to the Philippines, Miss Whitmore met Dr. Thomas Mitchell, to whom she was later married, but continued her work.

On September 14, three months after her marriage, she was stricken with cholera while visiting a family so afflicted and died in a few hours. Mrs. Mitchell will be remembered by many residents of Rainsburg and the Cove.

FRANCHISE GRANTED

Trolley Company May Run on Penn and Richard Streets.

At a meeting of the Borough Council Wednesday evening an ordinance was passed permitting the Altoona, Hollidaysburg and Bedford Springs Electric Railway Company to lay tracks from the borough line west on East Penn Street to the Court House and on South Richard Street from Penn south to the borough line.

The franchise is limited to 25 years and is granted on condition that the Trolley Company pave between the tracks and one foot on either side, and in case the borough should pave the streets on which the tracks are laid, the Trolley Company is to bear one-third of the expense.

Mr. Patterson, the promoter of the road, was in Bedford during the week and expressed himself as being confident that the road will be built.

Mrs. M. V. Zeth

In the death of Mrs. Martin V. Zeth, which occurred last Sunday morning, February 7, Hopewell lost a most estimable woman and one who will be greatly missed in the community. She was a member of the M. E. Church for over 50 years, active in church work, and always ready to extend a helping hand.

She was a daughter of George Porter and was born in Pittsburgh about 76 years ago. In 1859 at Pittsburgh she was married to Martin V. Zeth and to them were born three sons and three daughters, two of whom preceded her in death. Her husband and these children survive: Mrs. John Langdon of Huntingdon, Mrs. R. E. Madden, John L. and Frank M., all of Hopewell. The latter is now in a Philadelphia hospital, suffering with appendicitis.

The funeral was held at her late residence Tuesday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. G. L. Comp, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. J. W. Glover. Interment was made at Everett.

John T. Ross

John Theodore Ross died at his home in Schellsburg early Saturday morning after an illness of several weeks, aged 76 years, five months and 16 days.

Mr. Ross was born in Middletown on August 20, 1832. He graduated from Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, as valedictorian of his class. In early manhood he taught at Loysville, Perry County, and at Schellsburg, at which latter place he became acquainted with and married Miss Lavinia Ann Bunn. Later he taught in the State University of Illinois after which he took charge of the Orphans' Home at Middletown. Later he was engaged in business in Philadelphia. In 1898 he moved to Schellsburg where he passed his declining years.

Mr. Ross is survived by his widow and the following children. Mrs. Charles W. Bingham of Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Mrs. Percy A. Bellas of Exton, Joseph and Miss Theodora, of Philadelphia, and Abram Bunn of Schellsburg. A brother, James, of Ocean Grove, and a sister, Miss Kate, of Middletown, also survive.

Mr. Ross was possessed of exceptional intellectual ability, until his mind weakened in his later years, and was a devoted Christian gentleman, being a local preacher in the Methodist Church.

The funeral service was held at the home on Monday at 1:30 p. m., conducted by his pastor, Rev. G. W. King, of the Schellsburg M. E. Church, assisted by Rev. H. W. Bender of the Lutheran Church. Interment in the Union Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Layton

Mrs. Mary Layton, relict of William Layton, died on Tuesday, February 9, at the home of Jacob Rue in East Providence Township near Mattie, at the advanced age of 91 years, 10 months and two days.

Four daughters survive her, namely: Jane, wife of Cornelius Rice, and Mrs. Susan Williams, both of Everett; Sarah, wife of M. H. Akers, residing near Robinsonville, and Rhoda, wife of Jacob Rice.

New A. U. T. C. Superintendent

J. T. Budd arrived in Bedford this week and took up the work of Division Superintendent for the American Union Telephone Company. Mr. Budd has been with the company for about seven years, being last employed at Lykens. He supercedes John Faint in this position. The transfer of Mr. Faint is regretted by many friends here. The Gazette welcomes Mr. Budd into the new field.

The local Democratic ticket is a good one; the several candidates are well qualified for the offices for which they have been nominated and they merit the support of the voters of the town.

How to Prepare a Mixture to Cure
Rheumatism

IT IS VERY GOOD

This Town Has Its Share of Dread
Disease, Which is Said to Yield to Simple Home Recipe.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking the mixture well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which cause Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease,
but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home,
who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times
a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly.

Rough on Bedford County

A traveler passing through the Broad Top Mountain district in northern Bedford County, Pennsylvania, last summer, came across a lad of sixteen cultivating a patch of miserable potatoes. He remarked upon their unpromising appearance and expressed pity for anyone that had to dig a living out of such soil.

"I don't need no pity," said the boy resentfully.

The traveler hastened to soothe his wounded pride. But in the offended tone of one who has been misjudged
the boy added: "I ain't as poor as you think. I'm only workin' here. I don't own this place."—Recent

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Bedford People Know How to Save it.

Many Bedford people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. William Adams, Clarence St., Hyndman, Pa., says: "My son was troubled with kidney complaint since childhood. At the age of three he became bloated, until he was nearly twice his normal size and though we tried everything we learned of only temporary relief resulted. His kidneys were always weak and he had no control over the secretions, this causing us much inconvenience and worry. Just recently I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box. The first few doses gave him relief and he is now in better health than he has been in years. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—
and take no other. Feb. 12-2t.

The Cure-All

Are you fat? Walk.
Are you thin? Walk.
Are you nervous? Walk.
Have you no appetite? Walk.
Or do you gormandize? Walk.
Have you lost interest in life?
Walk.

Maybe your poor stomach won't work. Walk.
Or perhaps your liver has gone on a strike. Walk.

Cupid may have put a kink in your suffering heart. Walk.
In short, walking seems to be the remedy for all ills, save, perhaps,
broken legs.

P. S.—A two-mile-a-day walking club is spoken of for Bedford. A forfeit will be collected for each failure, which will be devoted to a banquet at the end of the year.

If you need a pill take DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Insist on them;
gentle, easy, pleasant, little liver pills. Sold by all druggists.

Lawn Tennis in Australia

Australia today possesses the best lawn tennis players in the world, writes A. Francis Walker, in an article on "International Lawn Tennis," in Recreation for February. Norman Brookes has beaten the pick of England, and there are a number of players in Australia who can make an excellent partnership with Brookes in doubles any time. There is practically no leisure class in Australia,
and there are few men who, enthusiastic in sport, can afford six months' vacation and the trip to England and back to play in the international contests. This is why a limited number of Australians have been heard of in the annual tournaments. But the English critics today are admitting that the Australians play the most scientific game and secure the best results all around.

Birds as Weather Prophets

If birds in general peck at their feathers, wash themselves and fly to their nests, expect rain. Parrots and canaries dress their feathers and are wakeful the evening before a storm.
If the peacock cries when he goes to roost, it is a sign of rain. Long and loud singing of robins in the morning denotes rain.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me." J. H.
Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

Evil Wrought by Want of Thought

Lack of thought is often at the root of our mistakes in this world.
Even our most serious mistakes, over which we have prayed in anguish, could in all probability have been averted if we had given to our problems a little gift of time and thought.

Don't let the baby suffer from eczema, sores or any itching of the skin. Doan's Ointment gives instant relief, cures quickly. Perfectly safe for children. All druggists sell it.

Hoarse coughs and stuffy colds
that may develop into pneumonia
over night are quickly cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, and it soothes inflamed membranes, heals the lungs, and expels the cold from the system. Ed. D. Heckerman.

LETTER FROM GREECE

W. O. Bruner Visits Famous Grecian
Capital.

Athens, Greece, Jan. 14, 1909.
Editor Gazette—

I must send you a few lines from this stop. As the Missouri and Ohio are the only two ships here, there is plenty of liberty. I am on a two-day leave and certainly am seeing everything I can in that time. I left the ship Wednesday at 10 a. m., and landed at Piræus, the seaport of Athens, and took a train for New Athens.
I paid one drachma, that is 19 2-3
cents in our money, for the passage.

After arriving in Athens I wandered into the Grand Hotel Pantheon and engaged a room for two nights for four drachmas. Mr. Harmon and I visited the King's Gardens and other places of interest until 9 p. m., then we went to our hotel and left a call for 9 a. m. but they never called us, and when we did get up it was 2:30 p. m. I told him as this was the Grecian New Year they must set the time ahead; the reason it is New Year's here is that the Greek calendar is 13 days behind ours.

We went to the ruins of old Athens and it was as interesting as our trip to Cairo. We saw the grave of the strong man, like Samson, named Hercules and also the famous Acropolis ruins. When we turned in at the hotel it was 8:30 p. m. so as we had climbed so many hills around the ruins we felt very tired, and decided to retire; I have left call for 5
a. m. and if they don't call us we will be overtime in returning aboard
our ship. I will take my next liberty in Saloniki, Turkey, and then in Smyrna. We arrive home February 21, 1909. Yours, Private Wm. O. Bruner.

MI-O-NA

Relieves Stomach Misery Almost Immediately.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and must act quickly.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve instantly.

But Mi-o-na, unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at F. W. Jordan's and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a producer of flesh
when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich, red blood.

HYOMEI
(PRONOUNCED HIGH-O-ME)
CURES CATARRH, ASTHMA, Bronchitis, Croup, Coughs and Colds, o money back. Sold and guaranteed by

Coughs of Children

Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is —give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also.
He knows best. Do as he says.

We publish our formulas
We banish alcohol
from our medicines
We urge you to consult your doctor

If you think constipation is of trifling consequence, just ask your doctor. He will disabuse you of that notion in short order. "Correct it, at once!" he will say. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills.
A mild liver pill, all vegetable.

Inscrutable Von Bulow.

During Hans von Bulow's leadership of the orchestra at Hanover a tenor of fame was engaged to play a star role in "Lohengrin," and while the singer was rehearsing his part Bulow was forced to go over the same bars a number of times without the new actor beginning to sing. Tired of his wasted efforts, the leader stopped the orchestra and angrily turned to the singer.

"I know that a tenor is proverbially stupid," he said, "but you seem to make an extensive use of this unwritten law."

At another time, while one of his grand intermezzos was being played with great feeling by his musicians, a peculiar noise, hardly perceptible by untrained ears, annoyed the leader for some little time. At first he thought it resembled the flutter of wings, but soon he discovered an elegant lady fanning herself in one of the boxes close by. Bulow kept on with his gestures, fixing his eyes on the offender in a manner which meant reproof. The lady, not heeding this, was suddenly surprised by the leader dropping his stick and turning toward her.

"Madam," he cried, "if fan you must, please at least keep time with your infernal nuisance!"

Personal experience with a tube of

An Exception to the Rule.

"It is an invariable fact," said the professor at the club, "that the sense of sight travels more rapidly than the sense of sound. You will observe, sir, that when a bit of ordnance is fired
from a fortress or a man-of-war you see the puff of smoke that comes coincidentally with the explosion several moments before you hear the report thereof. Thus it is always!"

"Not always," said little Todgers
from the corner. "I know of a case where hearing antedates seeing by really considerable lapses of time."

"I know of no such thing in the whole broad range of science," retorted the professor pompously. "Perhaps you can enlighten us, sir."

"Well," said Todgers, "it's the case of an Englishman and a joke. In almost every case the Englishman hears
a joke about a week before he sees it,
and!"

But the professor had gone, and they say that nowadays when he sees Tod-gers he shies off like a frisky horse in the presence of a motor car.—Harper's Weekly.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor, heart palpitations. Drastic physics gripe, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure.
Doan's Regulets act gently and cure constipation. 25 cents. Ask your

Different in Books.

In the books this is the way they say it:

"Outside the wind moaned unceasingly, its voice now that of a child which sobs with itself in the night, now that of a woman who suffers her great pain alone, as women have suffered since life began, as women must suffer till life wears to its weary end. And mingled with the wailing of wind rain fell
—fell heavily, intermittently, like tears
wrung from souls of strong men."

Outside the books we say:
"It's raining."—Acheson Globe.

The Brakeman's Joke.

"Ran over a cow this morning up above Coffeyville," said the brakeman to a reporter.

"How did it happen?" asked the reporter.

"She was drinking out of a creek
under a bridge," shouted the brakeman as he swung on to the last car and went grinning out of town.—Kansas City Times.

seen her often lately. Weed—Oh I sent her away on a little vacation.
Jimson—So? Where'd she go? Weed—
To the Thousand Isles. Jimson—Stay long? Weed—Yes. I told her to take a week to each island.—Judge.

Porter Always a Sailor.

During Grant's first term his secretary of the navy, Borie, for a time turned the actual administration over to Admiral Porter. Admiral Porter was a sailor in the strict etymological sense of the term in that he believed there was nothing like sails. As soon as he was in authority he caused the four bladed propellers of the vessels to be removed and replaced by two bladed ones in order that the ships might maneuver better under sail. The inefficiency thereby brought about is,
of course, apparent to any engineer, as the size of the propeller opening was fixed and the two bladed screw could not be made large enough. A few years later in a report to the department he actually claimed that the vessels were faster under steam with the mutilated screws. The facts, of course, were just the reverse, and when his influence became less proper propellers were again fitted. This was when he was still in his prime and his judgment was, at least, not impaired by age. About twenty years later, when the Roach cruisers were being built, the dear old man, then over seventy, went before the naval committee and said that the plans of these vessels were wrong because they had only auxiliary sail power. In his judgment they should have been given full sail power with steam as an auxiliary. He was still a sailor! The world had not moved for him.—Engineering Magazine.

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O is Used

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis Are Caused by Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined
never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. Uric-O seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert
and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure Rheumatism only.

Uric-O is sold by druggists at 75c and $1 the bottle. A liberal sample may be procured by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 358 Smith Bldg.,

The Wise Eskimos.

Everything in the Eskimo dress has a reason for its existence, writes Captain Roald Amundsen in "The Northward Passage." The members of Captain Amundsen's expeditions had become accustomed to the Eskimo dress and had adopted it, but many of them thought it ridiculous for grown up men to go about wearing fringe to their clothes, so they cut it off. I had my scruples about this, says the author, as I had already learned that most things in the Eskimo's clothing and other arrangements had their distinct meaning and purpose, so I kept my fringe and put up with the ridicule. He laughs best who laughs last. One fine day the anovaks, a sort of tunic reaching below the knee, made of deerskin, from which the fringes had been cut off, commenced to curl up, and if the fringe had not been put on again quickly they would soon have looked like neckties.

Only a Letter Out.

"Talk about scholars," said the proud Sam Smith. "Listen to my little lad talk about grammar. Tommy, what gender is thy father?"

"Masculine," said the learned Tommy.

"Beant it wonnerful!" said the proud father. "And thy mither, Tommy?"

"Feminine," replied the erudite juvenile.

"Hear that agent!" cried the delighted father. "An, noo, Tommy," he proceeded, picking up the family teapot, "what gender is this?"

"Neuter," said Tommy.

Sam's face fell.

"Well, well," he exclaimed, "it's allus the way. Still, not but what the little lad was far out. He only said neuter 'stead of pewter, that's a'!"—London Tit-Bits.

Resentment.

An old toper, being very hard up, went into his favorite bar and asked the publican for a glass "on tick."

"No," said the proprietor. "I won't give you whisky on credit, but there's a sixpence. Now, what do you want?"

"Nothing here," replied the tippler, lifting the coin and putting it in his pocket.

"The man who refuses me credit won't get my ready cash," and with an elevated nose he marched out at the door.—London Telegraph.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate woman's organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve tonic adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 14, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts v, 17-42. Memory Verses, 19, 20—Golden Text, Matt. v, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

Verses 12 to 14 of our lesson chapter, which tell of the healing of all the sick people who were brought to the apostles, are a manifest fulfillment of the last words in Matthew and Mark. "Lo, I am with you always." "The Lord working with them and confirming the word with signs following." Such manifestations of the power of the risen Christ are too much for the devil, who is still the spiritual adviser of all who are not controlled by the Holy Spirit, and so the religious rulers are filled with indignation by the evil one, and the apostles are cast into prison that they may thus do no more harm to the enemy's property by hitherto controlled. But, as usual, the enemies of the Lord imagine a vain thing, and the Lord has them in decision (Ps. ii, 1-4). Storm and tempest, fiery furnace or lions' den, prison gates and walls, are no hindrance to the Lord nor to His angels, who excel in strength and who delight to do His bidding (Ps. ciii, 20). The apostles, being still in mortal bodies, need to have doors opened for them, but even that proves no hindrance to an angel. So He who never slumbers nor sleeps sent His messenger by night to liberate His servants that they might go to the temple and speak to the people the words of life, and this they did. The next morning, when the high priest and his council and senate were assembled, they sent to the prison to bring the apostles, but while the prison was secure, as usual, and the keepers on duty there were no apostles within.

How it makes one's heart laugh to see God laughing at his enemies! There is nothing too wonderful for the Creator of heaven and earth (Jer. xxxii, 17). We do not wonder that they doubted "whereunto this would grow." We know that it will grow, in spite of all that the adversary can do, until every proud and haughty thing shall be laid low and "the Lord alone shall be exalted" (Isa. ii, 11, 17). Having learned that the prisoners were free men and teaching in the temple, they sent for them, brought them without violence and set them before the council, accusing them of bringing the blood of Jesus on the rulers and demanding of them why they continued teaching in this name after being forbidden to do so. They seemed to forget that they had cried, "His blood be on us and on our children" (Matt. xxvii, 25). Peter boldly replied that God must be obeyed rather than men and then once more to their face accused them of slaying Jesus, asserting that God had raised Him from the dead and exalted Him to His own right hand as a Prince and a Saviour to give repentance and forgiveness even to them and that they, the apostles, were His witnesses by the power of the Holy Ghost. That settled the fate of the council, and so they took counsel to kill them. The great murderer would fain accomplish some more of his devilish work and dispose of them as he had of their Master. They were quite ready for such a result, for they had been told to expect it (John xvi, 1-4). They were the same generation of vipers, or seed of the serpent (these Jews), as those to whom Jesus had said that they would do these very things. They were, as He said, of their father the devil (Matt. xxiii, 33, 34; John viii, 44). There are in this world only two classes, the righteous and the unrighteous, the children of God and the children of the wicked one, and there are in the future just two destinations, the kingdom and the glory and the place of torment. God is not willing that any should perish and has provided in His Son a redemption sufficient for all, but if people prefer the blindness and darkness of the god of this world (II Cor. iv, 4); if they still say, "Not this man, but Barabbas; we will not have this man to reign over us; we have no king but Caesar," then it must be understood that they declare themselves enemies of God, for "the friendship of this world is enmity with God" (Jas. iv, 4). "The free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom. vi, 23, R. V.), but if men deliberately choose the wages of sin in preference to who is to blame?

The counsel of Gamaliel in verses 38, 39, was in accord with Isa. viii, 9, 10; xiv, 24; xli, 12; xliii, 13; lv, 17, and other good words of the prophets, and to him they agreed, but they deemed it necessary to give the apostles a beating and to forbid them to make further mention of the name of Jesus (verse 40). Thus they declared themselves decidedly against Jesus Christ and that they would blot out His name if possible. They would not believe that God had highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come, and that all shall yet bow to Him either in glad submission or to hear Him say, "Depart from me, ye cursed" (Phil. ii, 9, 10; Eph. i, 21).

In contrast to these proud religious children of the evil one see these two rejoicing men, happy because they had been counted worthy to suffer.

Ornaments of the Peasage.

Lord Lyveden is an ardent peasage reformer and tells an anecdote in this connection for whose authenticity he pledges himself. This narrates how a famous statesman of the nineteenth century was called upon to visit his son in prison. He bitterly reproached him, remarking, "Here am I, having worked my way up from a middle class home to a great position, and when I die you will be the greatest blackguard in the peasage." The son listened quietly and then replied, with terrible irony, "Yes—when you die."

Another of Lord Lyveden's peasage stories is equally piquant. The son of a peer applied to a friend in the north of England for a housekeeper and was recommended a certain Mrs. Brown. The peer wrote to the woman accordingly to the effect that, having learned particulars of her character, he was willing to engage her as his housekeeper and making an appointment for her to call and see him on a certain date. The good woman replied: "My Lord—From what I have learned of your character I decline to enter your house. I am your lordship's obedient servant."—Westminster Gazette.

The Plays Mixed.

During one of his tours in this country, when the late Sir Henry Irving was playing "Twelfth Night" in New York, he revealed absentmindedness and greatly amused the members of his company and the audience. As Malvolio he was expressing surprise at a remark of Sir Toby.

"Do you know what you say?" he asked.

To his surprise, a roar of laughter echoed through the house, and his stage associates were convulsed.

He repeated the line, putting undue emphasis on the pronoun, and again the audience shouted with laughter.

It was not until after the performance he learned that quite unconsciously he had been parodying the well known words of "The Private Secretary." His only explanation was that it was done in a bit of forgetfulness while thinking of the other play.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Desert Tortoise.

One of the most interesting reptiles of California's great desert is the desert tortoise. A writer in Suburban Life says: "I have found as many as twenty of these hard shelled fellows that we usually associate in our minds with the thought of water in the very heart of the desert, where the water was exceedingly scarce. Yet when you pick them up they generally void two or three large spoonfuls of liquid. Dissection shows that they each have two large water sacks on the back, and these afford them their water supply. They are great travelers and can walk faster than we should imagine. They are also good climbers. I have watched one for hours climbing up and down the rocky sides of a desert mountain. He could wriggle himself up to a rock almost as high as he was long. Raising himself on his tail end, he would use his head as a hook, then claw with his right leg until it had secured a good hold, then, with what seemed to me extraordinary strength, he would lift himself up and wiggle his body into a secure position."

Kindness to Live Stock.

Kindness is the only profitable policy to pursue with live stock. The man with a loud or harsh voice and untamed temper seldom ever gets along with any kind of live stock. The successful steer man moves among his cattle quietly, speaking gently. Kindness and gentleness are the requisites for the best care of all live stock. Never should your milk cows be stroked by anything other than the gentle touch of the hand or grooming brush.

Foley's Honey and Tar clears the air passages, stops the irritation in the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. Sore and inflamed lungs are healed and strengthened, and the cold is expelled from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Get DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, and be sure you get what you ask for. They are the best pills made for backache, weak back, urinary disorders, inflammation of the bladder, etc. They are antiseptic and act promptly. We sell and recommend them. Sold by all druggists.

THE STATE HIGHWAY

The location of the proposed new state highway from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, which now seems assured, is practically narrowed down to two routes, the one along the old pike which passes through here and the other along what is known as the Juniata Valley route.

Those interested in the latter route are making every possible effort to secure the road, and will likely be successful unless those along this line take action, and very vigorous action.

At the meeting in the Court House Monday evening, a notice of which is given elsewhere in this issue, there should be a general turnout of representative men from all sections of the county, for the whole county will be benefited should the road be built along the first named route.

This route has the advantage of being half a hundred miles shorter than the other and this together with the fact that there is a good road bed for most of the distance will enable the road to be built at less expense than along the other route.

Then, too, this route contains scenery the grandeur of which is famed throughout the nation, and this is a matter of no little importance to automobile parties and tourists in general. This route is less thickly populated than the other and has not the railroad facilities enjoyed by those along the other route, which ought to be in our favor, for the building of the great thoroughfare would rapidly develop the country along the route by giving the people an outlet.

The shorter route, the good road bed, the scenery and other advantages should be sufficient to secure the road along this route.

LINCOLN CENTENARY

The rolling of the scroll of years has hidden from view the animosities that, as a result of civil strife, existed at the time that the assassin's bullet laid low the nation's chief, and today a united people are celebrating the centenary of Abraham Lincoln, whose premature and untimely death was a severe stroke to the nation and especially to the stricken South.

His life and his utterances are being re-read with renewed interest and from a standpoint unbiased; his greatness is being recognized. A product of the American nation, his name is the world's. His ungainly features were once sneered at, but in the light of history that furrowed face reflected the sorrows of a nation; those bent shoulders carried the burdens of a mighty people; those large, bony hands erased the line that separated north from south, and he stands today a colossal figure in the history of the American people and of the world.

A Quilting Party

Last Thursday, February 4, a number of persons were invited to a quilting party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reighard in Pleasant Valley. The ladies began quilting about 9 a. m. and with lots of fun and piano music furnished by some of the ladies, four quilts were completed by 5 o'clock.

All returned to their homes, having had a delightful time and enjoyed the excellent dinner prepared by the hostess. Those present were: Mrs. Jonathan Dibert, Mrs. David Shunk, Mrs. Calvin Dibert, Mrs. Jacob Young, Mrs. Wilson Dibert, Mrs. Humphrey Divly, Mrs. Shannon Dibert, Misses Minnie Diehl, Margaret Biddle, Katie and Agnes Dibert.

Tributes to Lincoln

The most perfect ruler of men the world has ever seen.—Edwin M. Stanton.

The life of President Lincoln was written in imperishable characters in the history of the great American Republic.—John Bright of England.

The weary form, that rested not, Save in a martyr's grave; The care-worn face that none forgot, Turned to the kneeling slave.

We rest in peace, where his sad eyes Saw perils, strife and pain; His was the awful sacrifice, And ours the priceless gain.

—John G. Whittier.

At the feet of Almighty, Lay this gift sincere Of a purpose weighty, and a record clear.

—Julia Ward Howe.

President Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" has always seemed to me the high-water mark of American oratory. It proves what so many have not discovered, that the highest eloquence is simple.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

Whatever is remembered or whatever lost, we ought never to forget that Abraham Lincoln, one of the mightiest masters of statecraft that history has ever known, was also one of the most devoted and faithful servants of Almighty God who has ever sat in the high places of the world.—James G. Blaine.

A man of great ability, pure patriotism, unselfish nature, full of forgiveness to his enemies, bearing malice toward none, he proved to be the man above all others, for the great struggle through which this nation had to pass to place itself among the family of nations. His fame will grow brighter as time passes and his great work is better understood.—C. S. Grant.

Dead, he speaks to men who now willingly hear what before they refused to listen to. Now his simple and weighty words will be gathered like those of Washington, and your children, and children's children, shall be taught to ponder the simplicity and deep wisdom of utterance which in their time passed in party heat, as idle words. In the midst of this great continent his dust shall rest, a sacred treasure to myriads who shall pilgrim to that shrine to kindle anew their zeal and patriotism. Ye winds, that move over the mighty places of the west, chant his requiem! Ye people, behold a martyr whose blood, as so many articulate words, pleads for fidelity, for law, for liberty.—Henry Ward Beecher.

HECKERMAN LETTER

A Visit to Dr. Biddle, Former Bedford County Boy.

Ashland, Pa., February 8, 1909. This town of 8,000 inhabitants gathered from all quarters of the globe and some from the middle of the globe, in Schuylkill County, a county that has more good towns, more churches and more saloons in it than you could imagine. 'Tis a very rich county, as it takes in a major part of the great anthracite coal fields. The residents very generally find employment in or about the mines, and it was the many accidents that would happen thereabouts that inspired our very big hearted legislators to build a state hospital for the injured persons of the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania at Fountain Springs, near Ashland. Just when it was built I don't remember but about thirty years ago. Fountain Springs is a cove situated a mile from Ashland.

Ashland is about two miles long, and when one starts at the Philadelphia and Reading depot to walk to the other end of the town he thinks that the distance is about six miles, for it is all up hill and some places the hill is steep. Fountain Springs was selected for the hospital because of the location and the purity of the water. There are a hundred and seventy-seven patients in the hospital, or were last week. The buildings, of course, have been greatly enlarged and a nurses' home will soon be added.

This home for the nurses is an idea of Dr. J. C. Biddle, a Bedford County boy; at least he was a boy or very young man when he read medicine with Dr. D. S. Griffith. Now his whiskers are as white as Dad's but he has the eye of an eagle and the nerve of a lion yet. He has withstood the various changes in the Legislature for twenty-five years, for it has been that long since he was made assistant surgeon of this hospital, which position he held for a short while, when his great ability as a surgeon and a practitioner as well became noised abroad and he was asked to accept the place of surgeon-in-chief and superintendent, which place he has held for almost twenty-five years, and during all this time no one has ever dared to crook their finger against his administration, much less say graft. During these years he has attended more than seventy-five thousand patients in the hospital and performed twenty-five thousand surgical operations of various kinds.

Many of these patients were outdoor patients. Each morning there are from fifty to seventy waiting their turns to have the healing hand of Dr. Biddle laid upon their suffering bodies and hear his kind word of comfort breathed into their ears. During the past two years there were 865 more in-patients and 1,685 more out-patients than ever before in the same length of time. The expenses are light. The daily average cost of maintenance of each patient is $1.35. The hospital today is most complete in every detail. They have their own ice and cold storage plant, electric plant, water works, dairy and everything else. The whole arrangement is managed by Dr. J. C. Biddle. Dr. Biddle is an authority and is consulted all over the state as to surgery as well as general practice. It did me good to meet him and I was sorry that I could not go out and stay with him, not as a patient, however.

Now, while Dr. Biddle is a wonder in his surgery, we have another family of doctors from Bedford County. Two of the boys are dentists, while the elder one is an M. D. I mean Dr. James D. Noble's family. Edward Noble, the oldest of the boys, has lately been married. Nothing new in one's getting married is there? Only in this case he waited longer than most men, as he was hard to please, which is not to be wondered at. After graduating at the University of Pennsylvania he accepted a position as assistant to Dr. Neal of Freeholds, Pa. His ability to diagnose cases was very soon noted and his success began with his first patient, and during his five years in Freeholds his great success as obstetrician was heralded all over the country. During this time he had over three hundred cases of confinement, only losing two by death. This is more cases of a like character than a doctor in common practice would get in a lifetime. Well, he recently resigned and will likely settle in Wilkesburg and be in the Bedford County colony. The two brothers, Walter and Joe, each graduated at the same college in dentistry. Walter married a Lancaster County lady, has purchased an elegant home in West Philadelphia and lives there. Joe has an office and practices his tooth pulling at 310 North 40th Street, where his mother and sister live. The mother was the eldest daughter of Adam Haderman of New Enterprise, Bedford County. With Judge Noble and Adam Haderman as grandparents of these three boys it would have been hard for them to have been other than they are. I merely tell you of all these men who came from our dear old county that has sent forth so many boys and girls that have become the salt of the earth.

Business in the hard coal fields is about half. With a mild winter and light demand for coal, the miners have only had work for two and three days per week. This causes much suffering among the miners, who, as a rule, have large families. I have seen more barefooted children during the past week than for many a day, but W. C. Michel, one of the mainstays of Ashland, said many women and children went barefooted because of preference.

Mr. Michel has the palace of sweets in his town and is assisted in his business by his good wife and pretty daughter Mary, each of whom can talk German faster than they can English. We have had good sleighing in this section lately, but I have not had the pleasure of any sleigh rides as yet.

Yours truly, M. P. Heckerman.

We would be pleased to send anyone suffering with chronic constipation, a full-sized box of Pinker's Constipation Pellets for a 2-cent stamp. Ed. D. Heckerman, the druggist.

THE MINSTREL SHOW

Go and Enjoy a Hearty Laugh—An Up-to-Date Performance.

The boys taking part in the home-talent Minstrel Show of the Bedford Club are hard at work every night rehearsing for the performance Friday, February 19. The prices which were originally 25c and 50c have been cut down to 25c and 35c, so as to make it within reach of all the lovers of a strictly up-to-date performance, one that will appeal to the children as well as the older people.

The first part is composed of jokes, songs, etc., used by the best professional companies on the road today. The after part is a production of the old time minstrel performance when minstrelsy was in its youth, introducing the funny burlesque on the well-known Uncle Tom's Cabin, with a number of specialties such as monologues, dancing, singing, etc. The music will be furnished by the Bedford Orchestra, under the direction of Prof. S. H. Koontz, which insures a first class musical part. Mr. Friedline, who is directing the show, is one whose experience and reputation as a comedian also insures us that there will be sufficient comedy to make you forget your business troubles for two solid hours.

Don't fail to see the big street parade—Arnold's Cornet Band, Little Eva in her pony cart, the famous blood hounds from Sunny Side and anything to produce laughter from start to finish. Reserved seats on sale at Dull's Drug Store. Get them early and avoid the rush. If you can't laugh, don't come.

Fixed Bayonets in London.

The privilege of marching through London with fixed bayonets is enjoyed by but very few regiments, such as the Royal Fusiliers, who trace their origin to Cromwell's trained bands, which in later years produced so famous a captain as John Glyn. After the Royal Fusiliers, or perhaps even before them in point of regimental seniority, come the East Kent "Buffs," now the third of the line, who claim a similar city ancestry while the Royal Marines for some reason or other also enjoy the same fixed bayonet rights in the city. A battalion of the grenadier guards was once impressed to serve as marines, and hence they share the privilege of the men who are "soldiers and sailors too." This also explains why that grenadier battalion has for its motto "Rule Britannia"—as a souvenir of the time when its combative existence was of the amphibious kind.—London Standard.

The Mental Jog.

"There is a certain type of person," said the business man, "especially in New York, who seems unable to understand what is said to him—or her—unless the statement or remark is prefaced by some catchword, usually the word 'listen.'"

"For instance, I have a stenographer who simply stares at me in dumb amazement if I say anything to her without first saying 'Now, listen.' If I begin to dictate a letter to her she will not write a word if I forget to give that mental jog. When I snap that at her she will scratch like mad. She is not the only one. The telephone girl cannot take a message unless it has that prefix. When I am out of the office and try to talk over the wire with her I must always begin, 'Now, listen,' or else she is hopelessly at sea and seems not to understand a word I say."—New York Press.

The Lincoln Centenary

The Nation's Tribute to
"A Great White Soul," a
"Humanized Interpretation of the Golden Rule"

By James A. Edgerton

Copyright, 1909, by the American Press Association

THE hour when a great white soul comes to earth should be held in perpetual memory. The soil his foot first presses is hallowed ground. Time and place are never so sacred as when they mark the advent of those sent of God to help men. They form the links that bind heaven and earth. They lend an added lustre to every time and every place, just as one who wears the human form worthily confers nobility on all of the sons of men.

Abraham Lincoln made every one in human guise more precious. He reminds us of our better selves. He was a symbol of the homeliest and commonest, yet of the highest and rarest human traits. We cannot think of him without becoming more loving, more charitable and more true. There is not an element in him that does not make one better to contemplate. The pure in heart can read all of his life without a blush, and the gentlest and most timid can view his every deed without a shudder. Lincoln had goodness without self righteousness, spirituality without cant, intellectuality without dogmatism and power without tyranny. He had most of the talents with none of their abuses. There are many great men we can admire and respect, but Lincoln we can love.

He was born a hundred years ago this year. It is fitting, therefore, that the land for which he lived and died should honor the event as it has honored but one other of its sons. We have not enough of the supreme souls that we can spare the example of one. It is not for their sake that we canonize them, but for the sake of all the rest. They do not need our praise, but we need their stimulus. By uplifting them we uplift ourselves. They act as local committee of the Lincoln Centennial association are such distinguished men as former Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, Chief Justice Fuller, ex-Secretary Taft and Mr. Bryan, and others whose names are household words in more than one land. Now that the Springfield program has been adopted by the educational authorities of so many of the states this simple ceremony will become the most widely observed and impressive memorial service ever given to a single man on the American continent if not in the world. But this will by no means end the observation of the Lincoln centenary. Almost equally notable will be the celebration at the Lincoln birthplace farm, which will then be dedicated and thrown open to the public as a national park. At this Kentucky ceremony President Roosevelt has promised to be present; also Mark Twain, Governor Folk and others distinguished in politics, law and letters. There is a generous emulation without rivalry between the two committees that have in charge the respective celebrations at the birthplace and the tomb. Thus the two ends of Mr. Lincoln's pathway will be bright with glory, while the fame of his life will stretch like a rainbow between. But the chief celebration will be neither at Springfield nor at the Rock of Ages of misinformation we are in concerning Washington, in whose case we have to depend on the Sparkses and Weemses for some historical fairy tales. Lincoln has not entirely escaped from these romancers even as it is, but they started their fiction factories so soon that it has been possible to overtake and brand most of the current. For example, there were a lot of the oldest inhabitants in several southern states who felt it their bounden duty to reflect on his paternity. All of these stories have been traced to their origin, proved to be erroneous and branded. Then some body came to the surface who said he had heard somebody say that had heard somebody else say that Mr. Lincoln was not born on the birthplace farm, but in an entirely different part of Kentucky. He made some sort of affidavit on the ground of this hearsay testimony. Now, it is fortunate all this happened while there were reliable, truth loving people on earth who knew just where Lincoln was born. Thus the thing could be demonstrated beyond cavil, nailed down and established for the ages. This saves posterity a lot of unnecessary speculation, investigation and trouble. Suppose these stories had been sprang after everybody that knew Lincoln was dead. All this inaccuracy might have trickled its way down through the centuries. A very large portion of ancient history belongs in the fiction department of our libraries. We are fortunate in another respect. Many of those who have written lives of Mr. Lincoln associated with him daily. He was great enough to seem great to his secretaries and partners. The telegraph operators at the war department, the attendants about the White House, the common soldiers who saw their commander in chief, all had some sort of inner prompting that this was not just an ordinary president, but that here was the sort of man that would interest the twenty-second century. So they made mental notes and printed them. The world has grown in 2,000 years so that now a prophet has honor in his own country and among those of his own household. They may not see all of his greatness, but if they even measure some angles of it these furnish a basis for future computations. If Lincoln had lived back in the days of Pericles or Augustus I have often imagined the sort of rich story Plutarch would have made of him. At a little earlier period, back in that enchanting but uncertain dawn of history before the shadows had quite lifted, men would have created of him an Odin or one of those delightful old pagan demigods that strangled dragons with their naked hands. But we have not so much to crow over, for they almost did that with Washington in our own day. Let us beware of putting Lincoln on a pedestal. It is the sweet and everyday humanity of the man that is his chief charm. It is easy to marvel at a higher order of beings, but hard to love them. Lincoln is close enough to us to love, and we must keep him so. There are enough little tin deities, but we need this man for our common humanity. He is too big, too warm and too precious to set him out of reach. They have robbed us of most of our heroes by making them unhuman and impossible, but they shall not do it with Lincoln. He belongs to our man and woman world, and we are going to keep him for our own. The far shining greatness of his soul makes his gnarled hands and wrinkled face all the more precious to us. Let us have all the centenaries of him that the passage of the years will permit, let us have libraries full of books about him, but never let him be removed from the plain people that he loved and that loved him. Almost anybody can be an aristocrat, but it takes one of God's own great, tender men to be a perfect democrat. It is this quality that makes Lincoln so alive in the hearts of the millions, and the man that robs him of even a part of it will in that far do him to death. Make the birthplace farm as splendid a park as you like, but keep the little old one room cabin on it as a reminder. Retain enough of the hardships to show what they were. We men who have to carve our way in the world, who have to cling to principles and choose right from wrong, who have to pass by temptation and who have to keep our hearts sweet through trials need all of the example of Lincoln to help us on. The man who robs us of even the humblest part of that inspiring story is a friend neither to Lincoln nor to us. We want to feel that he was such a man as we are, or at least such a man as we may become. He was our big brother, and we see the way he did things and then know better how we may do them. He was great not because remote, but because so close. He was so common he became the most uncommon man in our time. He was so human he grew almost divine. He was so meek he seems a king of men. He was so poor he has all the riches of our love. It is such a man whose centenary we celebrate. There is scarcely one in all the broad land who will not participate in word or deed or thought. There are no classes in the appreciation of Lincoln. Labor loves him because he was a friend of labor and himself toiled with his hands. The black man loves him for freedom. The north loves him as a leader, the south as a native son and a true friend. Culture appreciates him for his great intellect, his literary quality and his high soul. The common people cherish him as their own child. The nation reverences him as its preserver. The whole race of man prizes him for his large heart and his loving kindness. He was a humanized interpretation of the Golden Rule, an incarnation of the sermon on the mount.

Lincoln has not entirely escaped from these romancers even as it is, but they started their fiction factories so soon that it has been possible to overtake and brand most of the current. For example, there were a lot of the oldest inhabitants in several southern states who felt it their bounden duty to reflect on his paternity. All of these stories have been traced to their origin, proved to be erroneous and branded. Then some body came to the surface who said he had heard somebody say that had heard somebody else say that Mr. Lincoln was not born on the birthplace farm, but in an entirely different part of Kentucky. He made some sort of affidavit on the ground of this hearsay testimony. Now, it is fortunate all this happened while there were reliable, truth loving people on earth who knew just where Lincoln was born. Thus the thing could be demonstrated beyond cavil, nailed down and established for the ages. This saves posterity a lot of unnecessary speculation, investigation and trouble. Suppose these stories had been sprang after everybody that knew Lincoln was dead. All this inaccuracy might have trickled its way down through the centuries. A very large portion of ancient history belongs in the fiction department of our libraries. We are fortunate in another respect. Many of those who have written lives of Mr. Lincoln associated with him daily. He was great enough to seem great to his secretaries and partners. The telegraph operators at the war department, the attendants about the White House, the common soldiers who saw their commander in chief, all had some sort of inner prompting that this was not just an ordinary president, but that here was the sort of man that would interest the twenty-second century. ## "Little Farm That Raised a Man"

Memorial Museum Marks the Kentucky Birthplace of the Martyr President—The Old Log Cabin Restored

By James A. Edgerton

Copyright, 1908, by the American Press Association

THE little rocky farm that Thomas Lincoln was too poor to pay for has now become the property of the lovers of his son. When the new arrival reached the Lincoln cabin on Feb. 12, 1809, the last dream that could have entered the mind of the father was one comprehending the glory that had thus come to these barren acres. What shall the pawn say when the Master moves it, or what can it know of the result of the move? Most parents think their sons may become president, except those whose sons actually do become president. They are frequently so poor they think little about it. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and a soul that comes into the world is blown by the wind of the spirit to what heights or depths it may please him who sends the wind. As for the rest of us, we cannot foresee one single human destiny, and it is just as well that we cannot. When we plant an acorn we know an oak will grow, and when we sow corn or wheat we can foretell what the crop will be. But when a man-child enters the world we know naught of the harvest, whether it is to be of shame or of glory. There are no signs to tell of the coming of genius. The deity that presides at the birth of great souls may miss all the homes of wealth and culture to light at a stable or a cabin in the wilderness. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and none can tell where the spirit will carry the germs of God's purposes.

Lincoln was born on the very outer rim of civilization, yet the spot is now near the center of population of the United States. That shows how far each century goes ahead to pitch its tents; 1809 stopped with Kentucky, and 1909 has moved on to Manila; 2009 may go around the world and come back to Kentucky again. Who knows?

There is little to that Kentucky farm except the fact that Lincoln was born there. It is not much for crops or scenery. There is a rock spring on it and a creek. The muse of history has very little eye either for fertile soil or landscape effects. Battles are usually fought among most uninviting surroundings, and the immortals are liable to be born almost anywhere except where we would expect them to be born. If we were choosing a spot for one of the great ones to come into the world we would seek all the modern conveniences and a combination of seashore and mountain to furnish inspiration. That merely proves that we know how to raise crops and blooded stock, but we do not know how to raise great men. This is a branch of gardening that God does not leave to bunglers. Hothouse methods may be all right for forcing plants, but they are a failure for forcing genius.

The preservation of this shrine to the memory of Lincoln was made possible by the generosity of Robert J. Collier of Collier's Weekly. There were several enterprising gentlemen who desired possession of the farm for advertising purposes, and had it not been for Mr. Collier one of them probably would have succeeded in his shameless design. Among the bidders was a liquor firm that had already prepared posters announcing "Lincoln Birthplace Whisky." The agents of this firm imbibed too freely of their own wares, which permitted Mr. Collier's representative to steal a march on them and bid in the place before they arrived on the scene, for it is a sad and humiliating fact that the farm on which our greatest president was born was allowed to be sold for taxes. This, coupled with the further reflection that but for the interest and patriotism shown by one man this priceless shrine would have been used for selfish and base purposes, should make the American people feel quite proud. When it was too late there would doubtless have been raised a great cry of indignation which would have increased in pitch as the centenary of Mr. Lincoln's birth approached. We are saved from this humiliation by the thoughtfulness of one man—rather of two, for Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones had advocated buying the shrine before Mr. Collier took the matter up. Two men out of over 80,000,000! It is so God finds his agents, even though men are blind.

The birthplace farm is not the only Lincoln shrine saved from a degrading use. The old log building at New Salem in which Lincoln lived and had his store, together with the ground on which the historic village stood, was purchased by Mr. William Randolph Hearst and made a present to the Old Salem Chautauqua, the second largest Chautauqua in America. A whisky firm was also bidding for this to advertise some of its wares. It would seem that the whisky men appreciate the great liberator, whatever may be said for the rest of us.

It is a romantic fact that the only building left of the New Salem in which Mr. Lincoln spent his young manhood is that which he himself occupied. All the rest of the town has disappeared like a dream village, as though with his departure it had performed its function and gone back to the elements, leaving only his cabin as a memento.

At the time Mr. Collier bought "the little farm that raised a man" the historic rock spring from which it took its name had degenerated into a hog wallow, while the cabin in which Lincoln was born had been taken north for show purposes and was housed in a Long Island basement. This was rescued from the blight of commercialism, like the farm, and sent back from its wanderings to rest in honor in its own place. The journey to Kentucky was one of triumph. The little one room log cabin was escorted to its destination in greater state than most kings and conquerors. The railroads carried it free; the Wanamaker store in New York decorated the car; the governor of Kentucky detailed an officer and four militiamen to escort the old logs through with safety; Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia received it with honor; Baltimore, through which Lincoln had to pass in secret to keep from being assassinated, greeted the cabin that gave him birth with speeches of welcome; at Altoona the school children decked the car with flowers; at Pittsburg the Grand Army took it in charge; at Columbus the mayor and superintendent of schools made stirring addresses; at Indianapolis appropriate exercises were held, and at Louisville former Vice President Stevenson spoke for the state of Illinois and Henry Watterson for the gave Abraham Lincoln birth we could have a like revival of interest in his spirit, his ideals and his aims! He was not alone a man for one crisis, but for all. His fidelity to the public good, his refusal to permit private considerations to stand in the way of duty and principle, his tender solicitude for the poor and humble and his placing of man above wealth, of humanity above things and of popular rights above institutions, his faith in the masses, his devotion to the doctrine of equality and of the rule of the majority—all of these things are needed now and even in the republic. What a splendid opportunity this centenary presents to study Lincoln's spirit the innermost of the man that gave him his hold on the people of his age and all ages!

While associations are making beautiful memorials of the material spots that knew him and are arranging programs to act as the machinery of praise, the form and shell that carry the substance and life, why should not the millions of men and women who love Lincoln devote their leisure to a study of his life and utterances and an attempt to define the genius that animated them? Then why not crown all by a resolve to give to the affairs of the nation the same unselfish devotion, the same high regard for truth, the same love of the rights of man, the same spirit of righteousness, the same hatred of tyranny, fraud and sham and the same faith in God and the common people that he gave in such full measure, even to the sacrifice of life itself?

If this centenary, this dedication of the birthplace farm, this worldwide ceremony in his praise, could beget a spirit like that it would be of untold benefit to the nation and to the race. Could this people once truly comprehend Lincoln and follow the lines he marked out, they would make of this such a republic as has never been known in the files of time. We have never had a democracy as yet. We have never incarnated in a government the principles of the Golden Rule and the sermon on the mount.

Lincoln Birthplace Farm Memorial, Hodgenville, Ky.

state of Kentucky. One of the striking utterances of Colonel Watterson who was introduced as "the greatest living student of the life of Lincoln" is worthy of reproduction. Of Lincoln the orator said:

He was inspired of God for now, else could he have acquired that wisdom and virtue. Where did Shakespeare get his genius, Mozart his music? Who wrote the lyrics of the Scotch peasant? As God raised up and inspired them, so did he Lincoln. When a thousand years hence, the truth of history shall have left no room to doubt, no drama will be followed with deeper feeling than that which tells the story of his life and death. God laid his hands upon these rough hewn logs, and they brought forth a nation's hero.

Thus the plain Kentucky cabin, the humblest birthplace of a great soul since the manger of Nazareth, returned to its home to grace the centennial of that advent which had come to earth through its door. Both the farm and the house were turned over by Mr. Collier to an association headed by Joseph W. Folk of Missouri and having on its board of trustees such representative men and women as Henry Watterson, Cardinal Gibbons, William H. Taft, Ida M. Tarbell, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Charles A. Towne, Mark Twain and Albert Shaw. The fund for the work was made a common people's offering, and tens of thousands of these became members and gave each his mite to honor the man who in his origin, words and constant attitude had so signally honored them.

On the farm the little cabin has been placed at the exact spot where it before stood and has been surrounded by a strong and simple edifice, in which it forms the sole exhibit. This building, with its Greek columns, stands upon a hill and is approached by a broad sweep of steps leading from a plaza, from which also descends the path to the old spring. The remainder of the farm has been left as before, even to a gnarled apple tree said to be the last of Tom Lincoln's orchard.

How fortunate it would be if this revival of interest in the spot that Lincoln bodied forth both of them. He was the genius of these divine utterances made flesh. Herein was his strength. This it was which made his utterances shine with the light of love, tempered his judgment with mercy and gave him such sweet humility in wielding his unequalled power. Democracy, the equality of man, have their origin in the spiritual. Men are not equal outwardly, but only in their fundamentals and in the innermost. God and nature treat all alike. Here is the model for human government, and it was on this model that Abraham Lincoln worked. His code of principles consisted in the doctrines of the Nazareth crystallized into politics. We need both them and him. We can have him only by looking through his words and acts to the soul beneath. To find that and give it forth universally to humanity would be a century worth while, would be of more help than all the birthplace farms, all the formal programs, all the panoply and trappings and state. Not that we underdate these outward things. They are necessary, but they are not precious in themselves, only for what they represent. It is the mighty, the majestic and the merciful spirit of Lincoln that gives them life. It is that which we honor and that which we need. Show it to mankind, body it forth in all its whiteness and beauty, and we shall lend a glory to the outward show which will make it an event to be remembered forever. Without this it will be hollow and meaningless. It is for us to meet the crises of our day with the same spirit in which Lincoln met the crises of his day. Otherwise we are not worthy of him; otherwise all our praise becomes but so much lip service that insults rather than honors him.

We have our Lincoln farms and tombs, our Lincoln homes and shrines, our Lincoln statues and ceremonies. Now let us have the Lincoln spirit, and we can build a nation that will be a memorial for him indeed.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

This proved unavailing, neighbors were summoned and Mr. Nipple rolled the stove, which was composed mostly of iron and an immense glass globe, out of the room. It was then thrown in the street where it exploded with terrific force. The interior of the house is not harmed but, as a result, all members of the family suffered from nervous shock.
